BIG PARADE TO STIR UP FIGHTING SPIRIT

Special Committee Arranging Details of Big Meeting.

"The full significance of the mammoth parade and demonstration to be given honoring the District's first contribution in men to the Liberty army," said a member of the citizens' committee yesterday, "is not grasped until you think what an effect it will have on the troops' morale and the fighting spirit of the nation."

"Washington, being the war capital of the country, has a place in the limelight such that a parade with possibly 75,000 in line here, will show the world in spectacular fashion that the Yankees are not bluffing."

This statement was made following an enthusiastic conference between high army officers, including Secretary Baker and Gen. Crowder, and the committee representing citizens' and trade bodies, headed by Alexander Wolfe, at the War Department yesterday.

A special committee of officers and officials, including Gen. Duval, who managed the inauguration parade, is now arranging the details of Uncle Sam's participation. This will include quotas from the army, navy, and Marine Corps, as well as every military band in and about the Capital. Officers who will likely take part include Gen. Scott, chief of staff, and Gen. Crowder, head of the draft.

From present indications this event will eclipse the Preparedness parade held last year, in which the President walked down Pennsylvania avenue, bearing Old Glory.

At present, all action hinges on what moves the War Department special committee decides to take, and this will be made public within the next two or three days.

The entire citizenry of Washington, including fraternal bodies, the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, trade bodies, patriotic societies, labor organizations, and in fact everybody in the Capital, is co-operating for the success of this epochal demonstration.

At present, all action hinges on what moves the War Department special committee decides to take, and this will be made public within the next two or three days.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has gone flatly on record against a profit out of war. Elliot H. Godwin, secretary of the National Chamber, said, "It must not be overlooked, however, that business in peace time is conducted for profit. That is the rule of the game. Without profit it cannot live. Success of business is measured by profit."

A principal topic of discussion will be the duty that business owes the government in war. Strongest possible emphasis will be laid upon this. There will come the question of how business of the country may render even greater service to the nation in the war. This will include what may be done to control prices, how priority may be most quickly and effectively established, how greater efficiency in land and water transportation shall be developed, how we may best provide for and protect our forces on land and sea, and those dependent upon them at home, and what steps may be taken for better education of the nation on the issues at stake in the war.

Human Interest Stories of Police Court Happenings.

By RUDOLPH
PERKINS

The Very Idea.

Never again will Sadie Howard attempt to fool a policeman. Monday afternoon Sadie had an argument with another woman on Third street southwest, and a cop separated the two, and told Sadie if he caught her playing around there again he would lock her up. Two hours later Sadie came back to have the last word, but she was dressed differently and this time had on a hat.

It was her voice that got her into trouble. The other woman had forgotten all about the fuss, but Sadie intended to refresh her memory. A neighbor warned her to shut up and go on home, but no, Sadie must have that last word. The cop hove in sight again and recognized the voice and put it in the wagon. Sadie took her argument all the way to the station house and was still fussing yesterday morning, and maybe yet at Occoquan, because she hadn't the $5 to pay her fine.

And the Bottle Busted.
They say that temptation is 50 per cent of the crime. If that is so George Monroe is half as guilty as Peter Carter, who got arrested Monday night for fighting after having spent two hours in a sociable game of cards at George's house.

George came around and, worried by Peter to death to come and join him. Peter was sleepy and tired, but his eyes were rather sharp yet. George played a queer game and Peter noticed it and after conferring with George several times he hit him with an empty beer bottle and scared up his bald head. This wouldn't have happened if George had stayed home and played solitaire, and now Peter had to pay $10 just because George wouldn't let him go to bed like he had intended to do.

Joe Work? No! Yes!
Joe French hasn't had a shave for a month and as for a bath, we don't dare say. About a week ago he left Richmond at the request of the police department there and made for Washington, which was flowing with whisky and gin. Any man with the price of a drink can buy one, but it takes a shrewd man without a nickel to get his liquor. Joe was one of the "landed gentry," and the idea of work was preposterous.

He made the mistake of panhandling from the same man twice, and even tackled a policeman in plain clothes. This cop took him over to a contractor and offered him a job. This result was more than Joe could stand and he said to the patrol wagon driver, "Home, James." Mr. Whittaker has some special work picked out for Joe and for ninety days Joe will be in a veritable torment because they all work at Occoquan.

Even as You and I.
Carrie Smith only fights when she has to, and when that time comes, the hospitals get worked overtime. Sunday afternoon Carrie went upstairs to take a nap and she hadn't been there two minutes before she heard a knock at the door. Josie Wilkes was downstairs waiting for her. Carrie came down with a groan and Josie demanded the clothes of her head, who lately roomed at Carrie's house.

"Yoh kin have 'em when he pays me mah rent," said Carrie. "He don owe yoh no rent," replied Josie. Carrie is not given very much to argument, and she put Josie to sleep with a well-placed punch in the solar plexus. When Josie got her breath she got a warrant for Carrie, and although Carrie still has the clothes, she paid $10 for the privilege.

Just a Love Tap.
The Hughes family certainly do have a bunch of trouble. Marie and Raymond have been married long enough to know better, but every little while one of them has the other arrested for assault. Marie's face has been decorated several times by a sharp knife in Raymond's hands and just the other day Marie landed on the back of Raymond's neck with a big stone.

And he had her arrested. They had been living apart, but on Monday Raymond went to see Marie to make a "touch." Raymond was supposed to be supporting Marie, too. They had some words and then some Hicks passed and it seemed to the court that both were to blame and Marie was sent home. They didn't even make up.

Luke Was Gossipy.
Every time Luke Rose sees Emory Jackson, he says good morning or good night, or something like that and Emory pays no attention. It isn't because he hasn't any manners, it's because he does not like Luke. Luke tells tales, Emory thinks, because he can tell by the way his wife talks to him that Luke has been giving secrets away.

Before Emory was married he and Luke went with the same bunch of girls and once in awhile since this same bunch gets together with Emory and Luke. Of course Mrs. Jackson didn't know about it until Luke talked. Monday afternoon Luke spoke to Emory as he passed up Third street and Luke sent a brick after him. It hit Emory on the calf of the leg and he had Luke arrested. And Luke is out $5 with no regrets.

That's What They All Say.
Just how near a man can get to a crap game without getting the craps-shooters' itch was told in court yesterday morning by Sam Pinckney. Sam was pinched with two other boys Monday afternoon. And he She'll Learn Some Day.

Josephine Cook doesn't work but she gets plenty to eat, plenty to wear and a place to sleep. And still she is respectable. You see Josephine worked for a family and saved all her money and when they went away three months ago to Europe Josephine has been out of a job. She wasn't arrested for being a vagrant, but she never did like policemen and one of them has spoken to her several times about talking so loud on the street.

Two Are Bankrupt.
Two petitions in voluntary bankruptcy were filed yesterday in the District Supreme Court. Samuel Haas, a paperhanger, residing at 3501 Brothers place southeast, one of them lists his assets at $468, including exemptions and his liabilities at $319.68.

Local Mention.
Our best flour, $12.25 bbl.; 20-oz. cans baking powder, 12c; macaroni or spaghetti, 12c; our best 50c 49c; Wonder coffee, 20c; root beer extract, 8c, 412 Fourth St. S. E. and all the J. T. D. Fyles stores.

As she was independent as far as cash was concerned, and Josephine was a little bolder than she should have been. She forgot her manners and cursed a cop Monday night when he told her not to swear so that she could be heard four blocks and he looked her up and some time later she paid a $5 fine in court.

VOCATIONAL DIRECTOR NAMED BY HOUSTON

Secretary Houston, chairman of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, has made the following announcement:

Dr. Charles Allen Prosser, director of the William Hood Dunwoody Institute in Minneapolis, has been requested by the Federal Board for Vocational Education to accept the position of Director of Vocational Education under the board for a period of six months, beginning August 15. Dr. Prosser has accepted and has been given leave of absence by the trustees of the institute for that period. He will come here this week and will immediately enter upon the discharge of his duties.

Dr. Prosser is generally regarded as one of the best-informed men in this country on vocational education matters, especially on the administrative side. He has written many books on vocational education.

MACCABEES OUTING THROUGHS BAY BEACH

Hundreds Spend Day at Chesapeake with Fraternal Order.

With about three thousand mothers, fathers, sisters, and brothers, all members or relatives of members of the Maccabees of the District of Columbia and Annapolis, Chesapeake Beach saw one of the largest crowds of the season yesterday.

The features of the day was the speaking at the pavilion in large crowd. The principle speakers were Harry Almond, Edward Clark and D. W. Gall, all of whom spoke on the work of the Maccabees in the past year.

After the speaking the home guard unit of the Maccabees gave a drill and were commanded by William Adamson.

In the afternoon an athletic program was given and about 300 persons participated. The results of the contest were: Peanut race won by Albert Lewis; three-legged race, Joseph Moss and William Gee; fat men's race, William Worrell; dash for girls, Ellen Ellis; shoe race for boys, William Gee; shiping race for girls, Mary Springman; backwards race, William Gee; young women's race, Florence Stebbens. At the end of the contest prizes were awarded.

Frank Hannan was in charge of the excursion as chairman and Joseph Foster, vice chairman. Thomas Smith was in charge of the entertainment.

High tide came at noon and hundreds enjoyed the excellent bathing.
